ARTS

See "How to Cross the Street"

Artists' Reception: Wednesday, Feb. 28, 4:30-6:30 p.m.

WNCC Carson City, Main Gallery

Info: 775-445-3000

An art exhibit featuring a diverse range of media from three artists will be on display today through Friday, March 23. This exhibit is part of Capital City Arts Initiative's "CAP," a yearlong project that emphasizes the importance of art in public.

Featured are Erik Burke, an artist who creates public works on walls in Reno; Jenna Montgomery, a printmaker from Seattle; and Elaine Tin Nyo, a conceptual artist from New York. Kris Vagner, Reno News & Review writer and local artist, will contribute a catalog essay and wall signage to the exhibit.

"How to Cross the Street" artist Erik Burke paints a "Barefoot in Brazil" mural.

Meet Heather Patterson and Experience the "Elements"

Artists' Reception: Wednesday, Feb. 28, 4:30-6:30 p.m.

WNCC Carson City, College Gallery

Info: 775-445-3000

"Elements," a collection of large-scale paintings by Heather Patterson, hangs in the College Gallery through Friday, March 23. In this exhibit, the artist recreates patterns in the natural environment and then interprets their interaction with manmade surroundings.

"By analyzing these biological phenomena, I find similarities between their elements," Patterson said. "This could be the way a topographical map echoes wood grain, how cracked pavement resembles a gnarled tree branch, or how an ant trail, the bloodstream and a highway all resemble each other from far enough away."

ATHLETICS

Wildcats Win One and Drop Three One-Run Heartbreakers

The Wildcats baseball team (7-10-1, 1-3 conference) outscored the Community College of Southern Nevada six runs to five in Friday and Saturday doubleheaders in Henderson, but lost three of the four games. The Wildcats opened conference play with two extra-inning 1-0 losses on Friday, and split Saturday's games with a 4-0 victory and a 3-2 heartbreaking loss.

They will return home Friday and Saturday to face the College of Southern Idaho at John L. Harvey Field. Western will play a doubleheader each day beginning at noon. Tickets are free for students and $3 for faculty and staff. Come root on the 'Cats!
